内容简介

What Will Your Singapore Encounter Be? Soaring over the city on the world's largest observation wheel, the Singapore Flyer. Sweating over a platter of crab bee hoon (rice noodles) in the red-light district. Inhaling the scent of joss sticks and incense burning at the Thien Hock Keng Temple. Romancing your partner as you wine and dine in the lush Singapore Botanic Gardens. Tipping the doorman at the Raffles Hotel as you seek out a Singapore Sling. Skipping from mall to mall until your feet (and credit card) give out. Discover Twice the City in Half the Time. Full-color pull-out map and quality neighborhood maps for easy navigation. Our local author has chronicled the best sights, bars, clubs, food and shopping highlights, itineraries, walking tours and snapshots help you make the most of the trip. Local experts, including the publisher of food bible Makansutra, give the lowdown on the best places to chow down on local cuisine.

作者简介

American-born expatriate Joshua Samuel Brown has lived in Taiwan, Hong Kong and China on-and-off since 1994. A prolific traveler and writer, his features have appeared in an eclectic variety of publications around the globe, including the South China Morning Post, Clamor magazine and Cat Fancy. The late Subgenius philosopher Lago Von Slack infamously summed up Brown's work, calling him 'the Mahatma Gandhi of restaurant criticism,' and 'the Rudyard Kipling of professional boxing.' (To this day, no one knows quite why.)

Joshua has co-authored three books for Lonely Planet - Taiwan 7, Belize 3 & Singapore 8. He is currently working on the Yunnan Chapter for Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos & the Greater Mekong 2. His debut solo book Vignettes of Taiwan offers tales of betel nut beauties and how to avoid jail time by impersonating a Mormon. Usually erudite, occasionally opinionated, and sometimes bizarre, his blog Snarky Tofu is an essay-and-video filled scratch-pad from a life spent largely on the road.
